HISTORIC VICKSBURG

The Story of the Campaign, Siege and Defense of Vicksburg and of the Commands, Union and Confederate, engaged therein.
Compiled from the Tablet Inscriptions in the Vicksburg National Military Park

The Vicksburg campaign opened March 29, 1863, with Gen. Grant's order for the advance of Gen. Osterhaus' Division from Milliken's Bend and closed July 4, 1863, with the surrender of Gen. Pemberton's army and the city of Vicksburg. Its course was determined by Gen. Grant's daring and to Gen. Pemberton and his division commanders' seemingly impossible plan of campaign. This plan contemplated the march of his army from Milliken's Bend, Louisiana, a point on the river below Vicksburg, the running of the batteries at Vicksburg by a sufficient number of gunboats and transports, and the transfer of the army to the Mississippi side. These preliminary operations were successfully accomplished and the first battle of the campaign was fought near Port Gibson, May 1. The Union army, under command of Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, was composed of the Thirteenth Corps and Logan's Division of the Seventeenth Corps. The Confederate army, under command of Brig. Gen. John S. Bowen, was composed of Tracy's, Cockrell's, Green's, and Baldwin's Brigades, the Sixth Mississippi Infantry, the Botetourt (Virginia) Artillery and a section of Hudson's (Mississippi) Battery. Most of the Confederate regiments made forced marches to reach the battlefield and arrived with thinned ranks. Tracy's Brigade held the right, Green's and the Sixth Mississippi the left of the Confederate line. The battle was opened at an early hour by the advance of Carr's and Hovey's Divisions on the right and Osterhaus' on the left of the Union line, Smith's Division in reserve. The Confederate left was driven back about 10.00 a.m. and Baldwin's Brigade, just arrived, formed a new line about one and one-half miles in rear of the first position. Two regiments, just arrived, of Cockrell's Brigade were posted on the new line; Green's Brigade and one regiment, just arrived, of Cockrell's Brigade, were ordered to the Confederate right, which had retired a little from its first position. The First Brigade of Logan's Division was sent, on arrival, to the Union left, the Third reinforced the Union right and Smith's Division became engaged; the Second Brigade of Logan's Division did not arrive until near the close of the battle. The Confederate line was held until about 5.30 p.m., when both wings were driven from their positions and fell back across Bayou Pierre, the First and Fourth Missouri Infantry (consolidated) of Cockrell's Brigade arriving in time to assist in covering the retreat. Casualties: Union; killed 131, wounded 719, missing 25, total 875, one officer killed. Confederate; killed 56, wounded 328, missing 341, total 725, Brig. Gen. E. D. Tracy and three other officers killed.

Up to that time General Grant had contemplated the probability of uniting the army of General Banks with his army. He then decided not to await the arrival of Banks' army, and the march to the rear of Vicksburg by way of Raymond and Jackson was begun. The next engagement was at Raymond, May 12. The Union army, under command of Maj. Gen. James B. McPherson, was composed of the Third and Seventh Divisions, Seventeenth Corps. The Confederate army, under command of Brig. Gen. John Gregg, was composed of Gregg's Brigade and a squadron of Wirt Adams' Cavalry. The battle was opened by the advance of the Third Division, Maj. Gen. John A. Logan commanding—Smith's Brigade on the right, Dennis' on the left, and Stevenson's at first in reserve, but later on the extreme right. The Seventh Division, Brig. Gen. Marcellus M. Crocker commanding, formed line in support and as reserve. The Confederate line was held for more than two hours, when the Brigade fell back, mostly in good order, through and beyond the town of Raymond. Six mounted companies of the Third Kentucky (Confederate) Infantry arrived at the close of the battle and assisted in covering the retreat. Casualties: Union; killed 66, wounded 339, missing 37, total 442, seven officers killed. Confederate; killed 73, wounded 251, missing 190, total 514, nine officers killed or mortally wounded. The same day the left of Grant's army, under McClernand, skirmished at Fourteen-Mile Creek with the cavalry and mounted infantry of Pemberton's army, supported by Bowen's Division and two brigades of Loring's Division.

After the engagement at Raymond, Sherman's and McPherson's Corps marched toward Jackson, near which city a brief engagement occurred May 14. The Union army, under command of Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, was composed of Steele's and Tuttle's Divisions, Fifteenth Corps, Maj. Gen. William T. Sherman commanding; and Logan's and Crocker's Divisions, Seventeenth Corps, Maj. Gen. James B. McPherson commanding. General Grant was with General Sherman. The Confederate army, under command of Brig. Gen. John Gregg, was composed of Gregg's, Gist's, and Walker's Brigades. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston was in the city. Gist's Brigade was posted on the Clinton road about three miles west of Jackson, Walker's supported Gist's, and Gregg's was on the right of Gist's. The Third Kentucky Mounted Infantry, a battalion of sharpshooters and Martin's Battery of Walker's Brigade, were posted on the Raymond road about two miles from the city. The divisions of the Fifteenth Corps marched toward Jackson on the Raymond road; Tuttle's formed line of battle on both sides of that road and drove the Confederate force into the intrenchment; Steele's formed line on both sides of the railroad; the two divisions advanced and occupied the intrenchments on their respective fronts. The divisions of the Seventeenth Corps marched on the Clinton road; Crocker's formed line of battle, with Logan's in reserve, drove the Confederate line from its position after a sharp fight, advanced and occupied the intrenchment in its front. Casualties: Union; killed 42, wounded 251, missing 7, total 300, one officer killed. Confederate; killed 17, wounded 64, missing 118, total 199, one officer killed. The Confederate army retreated northward in the direction of Canton and General Grant had placed his army between those of General Pemberton and General Johnston.

Sherman's Corps remained at Jackson one day and was ordered to destroy the military supplies of all kinds in that city and as much as possible of the railroads centering there; McPherson's Corps marched west from Jackson the morning of May 15, and the bloodiest battle of the campaign was fought the next day at Champion Hill. The Union army, under command of Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, was composed of the Thirteenth Corps, Blair's Division of the Fifteenth Corps and Logan's and Crocker's Divisions of the Seventeenth Corps. The Confederate army, under command of Lieut. Gen. John C. Pemberton, was composed of Stevenson's, Bowen and Loring's Divisions, and Wirt Adams' Cavalry. Reynold's Brigade of Stevenson's Division and two Union regiments were detailed as train guards. Logan's and Hovey's Divisions were on the right, Osterhaus' and Carr's in the center, A. J. Smith's and Blair's on the left of the Union line. Loring's Division held the right, Bowen's the center, and Stevenson's the left of the Confederate line. The battle was opened about 10.30 or 11.00 a.m. by the advance of Logan's and Hovey's Divisions in line of battle; Hovey's attack broke the Confederate line at the angle, captured the guns at that point and at the junction of the Clinton and middle Raymond roads, and forced Cumming's Brigade and the right of Lee's to form new lines—the former on the middle Raymond road, the latter on a ridge between that road and its first position. Bowen's Division reinforced the Confederate left, formed line of battle under fire about 1.30 p.m., drove back Hovey's Division, recovered the guns at the junction of the two roads and most of the ground lost earlier in the day. Boomer's Brigade of Crocker's Division reinforced Hovey's and became engaged about 2.00 p.m.; two regiments of Holmes' Brigade of Crocker's Division became engaged a little later and Bowen's advance was checked. About the same time the right and center of Logan's Division reached the middle Raymond road and captured the guns on the left of the Confederate line. About 3.30 p.m., the Union batteries concentrated on a commanding ridge, opened heavy fire, the Union line advanced and the Confederate army was driven from the field. Stevenson's and Bowen's Divisions crossed Baker's creek and fell back toward Vicksburg; Loring's Division abandoned its artillery and marched southeastward to Cryst Springs. Casualties: Union; killed 410, wounded 1,844, missing 187, total 2,441, thirty-eight officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate; killed 380, wounded 1,018, missing 2,453, total 3,851. Brig. Gen. Lloyd Tilghman and thirty-two other officers killed.

Part of the Confederate army was ordered by General Pemberton to make a stand on the east side of Big Black River and an engagement occurred there May 17. The Union army, under command of Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, was composed of Osterhaus', Smith and Carr's Divisions of the Thirteenth Corps, Maj. Gen. John A. McClernand commanding. The Confederate army, under command of Brig. Gen. John S. Bowen, was composed of Cockrell's and Green's Brigades of Bowen's Division, Vaughn's Brigade of Smith's Division and the Fourth Mississippi of Baldwin's Brigade, Smith's Division. Carr's Division was on the right, Osterhaus' in the center, and Smith's on the left of the Union line. The Confederate line was formed in an intrenchment on the east side of Big Black River across a peninsula formed by a bend in that river; Cockrell's Brigade held the right, Vaughn's and the Fourth Mississippi the center, and Green's the left of the line. After an artillery engagement of about two hours, Lawler's Brigade on the right of Carr's Division attacked in line of battle with fixed bayonets, the Union line advanced all its entire front, and the Confederate army fell back from the intrenchment.

ment in disorder and crossed the river. Casualties: Union; killed 39, wounded 237, missing 3, total 279, seven officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate; killed 3, wounded 9, missing 539, total 551 (exclusive of Vaughn's Brigade and Fourth Mississippi of Baldwin's Brigade not reported), one officer killed.

The railroad bridge (covered with plank) and the boat bridge on which the Confederates crossed the river were both burned. The morning of May 18 the Union army began crossing on three bridges that had been laid during the afternoon and night of the 17th. Sherman's Corps crossed at Bridgeport, on the right, and marched toward Vicksburg on the Benton-Jackson road; McPherson's Corps, in the center, crossed on a floating bridge borne up by cotton bales, and marched on the same road; McClelland's Corps crossed near the railroad bridge, marched on the Jackson road to Mt. Alban, took a cross road at that point, turning to the left to intersect the Baldwin's Ferry road and marched toward Vicksburg on that road. General Grant believed that his army could storm the Confederate works around the city, and ordered an assault at 2.00 p.m. of May 19. The Union army under his command was composed of three divisions of the Thirteenth Corps, the Fifteenth and the Seventeenth Corps. The Confederate army, under command of Lieut. Gen. John C. Pemberton, was composed of Stevenson's, Forney's, Smith's and Bowen's Divisions, and Waul's Texas Legion. The Fifteenth Corps was on the right, the Seventeenth in the center, and the Thirteenth on the left of the Union line. Stevenson's Division held the right, Forney's the center and Smith's the left of the Confederate line. Bowen's Division and Waul's Texas Legion were in reserve, but Cockrell's Brigade of Bowen's Division was engaged. The Union army advanced at 2.00 p.m.; only a reconnaissance in force was accomplished at most points along its line, but Blair's Division of the Fifteenth Corps assaulted the Stockade Redan on the Graveyard road and carried the colors of some of its regiments close to both faces of that work and to the curtain immediately west of it. Casualties: Union; killed 157, wounded 777, missing 8, total 942, fifteen officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate; not fully reported.

Neither General Grant nor the rank and file of his army were yet convinced that Vicksburg must be reduced by the slow and laborious operations of a siege. The Twentieth and Twenty-first were employed in securing positions for the infantry and in placing batteries on commanding points. At 10.00 o'clock the forenoon of the 22d a second assault was made. The two armies were in position on their respective lines as on May 19, except that Waul's Texas Legion had been assigned a position in rear of the left of Lee's Brigade on the left of Stevenson's Division. After a heavy cannonade by every gun in position on the Union line, assaults were made at 10.00 a.m. by the Fifteenth Corps at the Stockade Redan on the Graveyard road; by the Seventeenth on the right and left of the Jackson road, and by the Thirteenth at the lunette on the Baldwin's Ferry road, the railroad redoubt and the curtain between that redoubt and Fort Garrott; Hall's Brigade of McArthur's Division, Seventeenth Corps, advanced close to the Confederate line on the Warrenton road but did not assault; the colors of the leading regiments were carried close to the Confederate works at every point assaulted, a brigade headquarters flag was placed on the parapet of the Stockade Redan, flags were placed on the parapet of the railroad redoubt and that work was temporarily occupied, but no permanent lodgment was anywhere made. Assaults were made in the afternoon by the Seventeenth Corps at curtain between the railroad redoubt and the lunette on the Baldwin's Ferry road, at that lunette, at the Jackson road, and at the curtain north of Glass' Bayou; and by the Fifteenth Corps at the curtain south of the Graveyard road, at the Stockade Redan on that road, and at a point about one-third of a mile west of that redan; the colors of the leading regiments were again carried close to the Confederate line, another flag was placed on the parapet of the Stockade Redan, but the effort to carry the Confederate line of defense by assault was unsuccessful at every point. Casualties: Union; killed 502, wounded 2,550, missing 147, total 3,199, sixty-eight officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate; not fully reported.

As early as May 5, General Grant had ordered Lauman's Division of the Sixteenth Corps to the vicinity of Vicksburg; it took position on the left of the Thirteenth on May 25, and, on June 15, Herron's Division took position on the extreme left, extending its line to the river below Vicksburg and thereby completing its investment. Two divisions of the Ninth Corps, two other divisions of the Sixteenth Corps, and seven brigades detached from the three corps that began the campaign were deployed on an exterior line, under command of General Sherman after June 22, extending from Haynes' Bluff on the left to Big Black River bridge on the right, to guard against attack by Johnston's army. This army was assembled after the engagement at Jackson, May 14, in the hope that it would be able to raise the siege of Vicksburg, either by defeating General Grant's army or by assisting the Confederate army of Vicksburg to break through the investment line. Siege operations were carried on by the part of the Union army engaged on that line, and were successfully opposed by the Confederate army, from May 23 to July 3, when a proposal for capitulation was sent by General Pemberton to General Grant. They met for conference that afternoon between the lines and near the Jackson road. The terms of capitulation were agreed upon by correspondence after the meeting, and the Confederate army of Vicksburg was surrendered to General Grant on July 4, and a detachment of his army occupied the city. Casualties from March 29 to July 4, inclusive: Union; killed 1,581, wounded 7,554, missing 1,007, total 10,142. Confederate; killed 1,413, wounded 3,878, missing 3,800, total 9,091; 29,491 officers and men were surrendered at the end of the defense.

At the beginning of siege operations, May 23, about 162 guns were on the investment line, most of them in position in hastily constructed batteries. These were enlarged and strengthened and additional guns successively mounted in new batteries at advantageous positions. Embasures of batteries close to the Confederate line closed against rifle balls by plank shutters or with bags of packed cotton. The first parallel made almost continuous from the right on the river to the left of the 13th Army Corps, and, as the approaches were carried forward, second and third parallels opened. Loopholes for sharpshooters, made either with sand bags or in a timber on the parapet; sixteen principal approaches begun and eleven carried close to the Confederate line. They were loop-holed for sharpshooters wherever opportunity for fire was afforded; nine galleries for mines started and two mines fired, both at the head of Logan's approach. At the end of the siege, July 4, about 220 guns, including all from the Navy, were on the investment line, largely in position; eighty-nine batteries constructed, but about twenty abandoned and their guns moved to the exterior line or to advanced positions; aggregate length of Union trenches, twelve miles.

The Confederate line of defense, eight miles long, mounted about 130 guns in sixty-seven batteries. Works and connecting curtains loop-holed for sharpshooters. Damage done them by the Union batteries repaired at night. A number of guns disabled by the fire of the Union batteries and, in most cases, new guns could not be mounted in their places. Countermines against Union approaches and mines prepared at nine places and four fired. Retrenchments made in rear of some works, but not used, as the line of defense was not anywhere broken. The defense largely confined to sharpshooting and maintained for forty-seven days without relief for the officers and men in the trenches, part of the time without sufficient rations.

Reported casualties, May 23-July 4: Union; killed 94, wounded 425, missing 119, total 638, nineteen officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate, not separately reported. Reported casualties, May 18-July 4: Union; killed 766, wounded 3,793, missing 276, total 4,835, 107 officers killed or mortally wounded. Confederate, river batteries not included; killed 873, wounded 2,141, missing 158, total 3,172, 93 officers killed or mortally wounded.

The Vicksburg Campaign would not have been planned and could not have been conducted on the lines on which it was successfully made without the assistance of the Navy. About twenty-six gunboats and light-drafts of the Mississippi Squadron, with necessary attendants, Acting Rear Admiral David D. Porter commanding, and, during part of the time, the Mississippi Marine Brigade, Brig. Gen. Alfred W. Ellett commanding, co-operated with the army in the operations of the campaign and siege.

The night of April 16, 1863, eight gunboats, including the Ram "General Price," and three transports passed the Confederate batteries on the river line at Vicksburg and at Warrenton, one transport sunk. Six days later five additional transports passed down without material damage, and one was sunk by the fire of the Confederate batteries. The gunboats below Vicksburg bombarded the Confederate batteries at Grand Gulf, April 29, without effectively silencing them. They and the seven transports ran past these batteries that night and, during the two following days, carried six divisions of the army across the river, landing them at Bruinsburg on the Mississippi side. The other divisions of General Grant's army were carried across the river at later dates.

At the beginning of the investment the gunboats below the city attacked the lower Confederate batteries, May 19, May 20, May 21, May 22 and May 27. On the last-named day the gunboat "Cincinnati" attacked the upper batteries from above the city and was disabled and sunk. During the siege detachments from the Squadron co-operated by making the investment on the river side as complete as possible and by shelling the Confederate batteries and intrenchments; served seven mortars on mortar boats anchored behind the peninsula opposite the city, and, during the latter part of the siege, three heavy guns on scows behind the peninsula and at the left—north—of the mortar boats; made expeditions up the Yazoo River and its tributaries and co-operated in the repulse of the Confederate attacks at Young's Point, Milliken's Bend and Goodrich's Landing. Thirteen heavy guns from the Squadron mounted on the investment line in eight batteries.

Detachments from the Marine Brigade were engaged at Richmond, Louisiana, June 15, casualties, wounded 3; co-operated in the repulse of the Confederate attack at Goodrich's Landing, casualties, 1 officer killed; and served three guns on the peninsula opposite the city during the latter part of the siege. Reported casualties in the Squadron—including the infantry regiments detailed for service on gunboats—in the campaign and siege: killed 23, drowned 14, wounded 102, missing 1, total 140, 1 officer killed.

The River Batteries, under command of Colonel Edward Higgins, C. S. Artillery, were served by six companies of Tennessee Heavy Artillery on the right, four companies of the 8th Louisiana Heavy Artillery Battalion in the center and eight companies of the 1st Louisiana Heavy Artillery on the left. Two companies of the 22d Louisiana were attached to the left and the Vaiden (Mississippi) Battery to the center of the command. It was charged with the duty of opposing the passage of Union gunboats and transports and was in action; the night of April 16, when eight gunboats and three transports passed, without reported casualties, one transport sunk; the night of April 22, when six transports passed, casualties, 1 killed, 2 wounded, total 3, one transport sunk, and the night of May 3, when a tug and two loaded barges attempted to pass but were sunk, without reported casualties.

At the beginning of the investment, May 18, about thirty-eight heavy guns were in position on the river line and thirteen light pieces posted on the city front. All the light and six of the heavy guns were successively moved to the line of defense with the detachments serving them, but one of the heavy guns was moved back to the river line.

During the investment, May 18-July 4, the river batteries were opposed to the gunboats below the city, the mortars behind the peninsula, and the guns on the peninsula and on scows, and were engaged May 19, May 20, May 21, May 22 and May 27, with the gunboats below the city. On the last-named day the gunboat "Cincinnati" attacked the upper batteries and was disabled and sunk on the Mississippi side of the great bend in the river above the city, after an action of thirty minutes. Reported casualties in command during the investment: killed and wounded about thirty.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Ewing's Brigade; Assault, May 19, 1863.

This brigade, with skirmishers in advance, was formed behind the crest of the ridge immediately north of Mint Spring Bayou, in order, from right to left, as follows: 37th Ohio, 4th West Virginia, 47th Ohio, in line, and the 30th Ohio in reserve. The brigade connected closely with Steele's Division on its right, and with Giles A. Smith's Brigade on its left. This brigade moved promptly at the appointed time, 2.00 p.m. Its left two regiments advanced close to the Confederate intrenchment, where their colors remained until after dark. The right regiment was unable to cross the ravine in its front, on account of obstacles, but covered the left in its advanced position by a heavy fire. When the line moved forward the reserve regiment advanced to the crest of the hill and began firing. After dark the brigade retired, under orders, to the position where it formed for the assault. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the 4th West Virginia. Casualties: 30th Ohio, wounded 9; 37th Ohio, killed 14, wounded 35, total 49. Lieuts. Gustav A. Wintzer and Sebaldu Hassler killed; 47th Ohio, killed 13, wounded 40, missing 6, total 59, Lieut. Edward N. Bernard killed, Lieut. Jonathan Casto mortally wounded; 4th West Virginia, killed 27, wounded 110, total 137, Maj. Arza M. Goodspeed killed, Lieut. Finley D. Ong mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 54, wounded 194, missing 6, total 254.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Giles A. Smith's Brigade; Assault, May 19, 1863.

This brigade, with skirmishers in advance, was formed behind the crest of the ridge about 320 yards in front of the north face of the Confederate Stockade Redan on the Graveyard road, in the following order from right to left: 6th Missouri, 113th Illinois (detachment), 116th Illinois, 1st battalion, 13th U. S. Infantry, in line, and the 8th Missouri in reserve. The ground in front was much obstructed by a growth of brush and cane, and by felled trees. The brigade moved promptly at the appointed time—2.00 p.m., but its lines were soon broken up by the obstacles encountered, and by the rugged character of the ground. The 8th Missouri, under orders, halted on the crest of the first ridge in front of the one behind which the line was formed, and began firing; the battalion of the 13th U. S. Infantry and the 116th Illinois pushed close to the Stockade Redan and to the Stockade west of that work, some men of the battalion getting into the ditch on the north face of the redan; the 113th Illinois (detachment) and the 6th Missouri advanced close to the Stockade and to the curtain west of it. The brigade maintained its position until after dark, when it withdrew, under orders. This tablet marks the point to which Capt. Charles Ewing, 1st Battalion, 13th U. S. Infantry, carried the colors of the battalion and where he remained with them until after dark. Casualties: 113th Illinois (detachment), wounded 7; 116th Illinois, killed 6, wounded 64, missing 1, total 71; 6th Missouri, killed 3, wounded 25, total 28; 8th Missouri, killed 7, wounded 19, total 26; 1st Battalion, 13th U. S. Infantry (250 officers and men engaged), killed 21, wounded 49, total 70, Capt. Edward C. Washington and Lieut. Justus A. Boies mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 37, wounded 164, missing 1, total 202.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Thomas Kilby Smith's Brigade; Assault, May 19, 1863.

This brigade, with skirmishers in advance, was formed about 600 yards in front of the east face of the Confederate Stockade Redan on the Graveyard road, on both sides of that road, in the following order: the 83d Indiana with the 127th Illinois in support, under command of Col. Spooner, 83d Indiana, on the right of the road; the 55th Illinois on the left of the 83d Indiana, resting its right on the road, the 54th Ohio on the left of the 55th Illinois and the 57th Ohio in support. The ground in front was much obstructed by a growth of brush and cane, and by felled trees. The brigade moved promptly at the appointed time—2.00 p.m., but its lines were soon broken up by the obstacles encountered and by the rugged character of the ground. The right wing approached close to the salient angle of the Stockade Redan, a few men getting into the ditch of that work. The left wing halted at the crest of the ridge nearest to the Confederate line and advanced companies from each regiment close to that line. Both wings maintained their positions until after dark, when they retired, under orders. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the 83d Indiana. Casualties: 55th Illinois, killed 4, wounded 22, total 26, Lieut. Levi Hill killed; 127th Illinois, killed 8, wounded 31, missing 1, total 40, Lieut. Hiram McClintock killed, Capt. John S. Riddle mortally wounded; 83d Indiana, killed 10, wounded 46, total 56, Capt. Metellus Calvert and John M. Cresswell killed; 54th Ohio, killed 2, wounded 13, total 15; 57th Ohio, killed 5, wounded 13, total 18; aggregate, killed 29, wounded 125, missing 1, total 155.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Buckland's Brigade; Assaults, May 19 and May 22, 1863.

The afternoon of May 19, this brigade was in support of Blair's Division—the 72d Ohio in front, on the right of the road, and the 95th Ohio in its rear, the 114th Illinois on the left of the road and the 93d Indiana on its left. About dusk that evening, Gen. Blair's Division retired and Gen. Buckland ordered pickets and guards to the front. The brigade remained, in the advance, in this position until the evening of May 21, when it was withdrawn, except the 93d Indiana, which did not withdraw until the morning of May 22. May 22, the brigade, except the 72d Ohio ordered to take position on the left of the advance of Col. Thomas Kilby Smith's Brigade, formed line on the left of the road. This tablet marks the right of the three regiments on that day and the right of the 114th Illinois, the afternoon of May 19. Casualties: May 19, 114th Illinois, killed 2, wounded 10, total 12; 93d Indiana, killed 1, wounded 5, total 6; 72d Ohio, killed 1, wounded 13, total 14; 95th Ohio, wounded 2; aggregate, killed 4, wounded 30, total 34. May 22, 114th Illinois, wounded 2; 93d Indiana, wounded 2; 72d Ohio, wounded 1; 95th Ohio, wounded 4; aggregate, wounded 9.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Ransom's Brigade; Assault, May 19, 1863.

This brigade was formed for the assault, in two lines, about 450 yards in front of the Confederate line—the 95th Illinois on the left of the first line and the 17th Wisconsin on its right. The position of the other regiments cannot be accurately stated. The 17th Wisconsin advanced first, probably a little before the appointed time—2.00 p.m., and the 95th Illinois soon moved forward. That regiment crossed the ravine in front of the Confederate line and advanced to within 100 yards of that line, which position was held until 4.00 o'clock next morning. None of the other regiments approached so close to the Confederate line. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the 95th Illinois. Casualties: 11th Illinois, wounded 12; 72d Illinois, killed 2, wounded 2, total 4; 95th Illinois, killed 8, wounded 54, total 62; 14th Wisconsin, killed 1, wounded 6, total 7; 17th Wisconsin, killed 3, wounded 36, total 39; aggregate, killed 14, wounded 110, total 124.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Steele's Division; Assault, May 22, 1863.

Thayer's Brigade, except the 4th Iowa Infantry, took position the afternoon and evening of May 19, under cover of the spur extending north from the Confederate line at this point. Wood's Brigade, except the 76th Ohio, and Manter's were moved from the right and passed in rear of Thayer's on May 22. About 4.00 p.m., the advance was ordered by Gen. Steele, and the three regiments of Thayer's Brigade moved forward in line, followed by Wood's Brigade in column by regiments—the 12th Missouri leading. Thayer's regiments approached close to the Confederate line; the 12th Missouri, of Wood's Brigade, climbed the north face of the spur and advanced in support of the leading brigade—the four right companies reaching a position near the Confederate line. The ground gained was held until after dark, when the division retired, under orders—Wood's and Manter's Brigades returning to their respective positions on the right. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the 9th Iowa of Thayer's Brigade. Casualties: 13th Illinois, killed 1, wounded 1, total 2; 30th Missouri, wounded 3; 31st Missouri, killed 1, wounded 1, total 2, Lieut. William Robinson killed; aggregate Manter's Brigade, killed 2, wounded 5, total 7; 25th Iowa, killed 5, wounded 27, missing 5, total 37; 31st Iowa, killed 3, wounded 19, total 22, Lieut. Robert Anderson mortally wounded; 3d Missouri, killed 3, wounded 12, missing 3, total 18; 12th Missouri, killed 26, wounded 82, total 108, Major Gustavus Lightfoot, Capt. Christian Andel, Lieuts. Charles L. Kasten and George Eggart killed; aggregate, Woods' Brigade, killed 37, wounded 140, missing 8, total 185; 9th Iowa, killed 18, wounded 60, total 78, Lieuts. Edward Tyrrell and Jacob Jones killed, Capt. Florilla M. Kelsey and Frederick S. Washburn, and Lieut. Leonard L. Martin mortally wounded; 26th Iowa, killed 4, wounded 23, total 27; 30th Iowa, killed 13, wounded 36, missing 1, total 50, Col. Charles H. Abbott, Lieut. James P. Milliken killed, Lieut. David Letner mortally wounded; aggregate Thayer's Brigade, killed 35, wounded 119, missing 1, total 155.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

This work and the lines immediately to the right and left of it were held, May 22, 1863, and the assault of the Union force repulsed by the 26th Louisiana. The 31st Louisiana, on the right of Baldwin's Brigade, assisted in repulsing the assault. A rough stockade in front of this work was begun June 9, and finished the night of June 11. A trench, immediately in rear of the stockade, was completed June 15. A countermine against the Union approach was prepared from the trench, but not fired. Casualties in 26th Louisiana during the defense: killed 28, wounded 44, total 72, Major W. W. Martin, Capt. Felix G. Winder, and Lieut. Numa Arrieux and Lieut. P. N. Ternier killed.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

This lunette, part of the stockade to its right, and the line to its left were held, the afternoon of May 19, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 27th Louisiana Infantry with the Second Missouri Infantry in support. The casualties in the Louisiana regiment were severe but cannot be accurately stated.

The position was held, May 22, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 27th Louisiana and five companies of the 2d Missouri, with five companies of that regiment in reserve. The casualties cannot be accurately stated. The lunette, the line immediately to its left, the stockade to its right, and the north face of the stockade redan were held, after May 25, by the 27th Louisiana. A countermine against the Union approach was prepared at the stockade, but not fired. Casualties in 27th Louisiana during the defense: killed 58, wounded 96, total 154, Lieut. Col. L. L. McLaurin and Lieut. George Harris killed, Col. L. D. Marks mortally wounded.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Stockade Redan on Graveyard Road.

This redan, the line immediately to its right, and part of the stockade to its left were held, the afternoon of May 19, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 36th Mississippi, with the 5th Missouri in support, on its east face; and the 1st and 4th Missouri (consolidated) on its north face and part of the line of the stockade. The 3d Missouri was in reserve. Casualties: in 36th Mississippi, cannot be accurately stated; in Cockrell's Brigade, killed 8, wounded 62, total 70, nearly all in this position.

The position was held, May 22, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed by the 36th Mississippi and six companies of the 1st and 4th Missouri on its east face, and the 3d Missouri on its north face and part of the line of the stockade. Three companies of the 1st and 4th Missouri in reserve were moved from point to point, as required. Casualties: in Hebert's Brigade, killed 21, wounded 39, total 60—not distributed between this redan and the other points on the brigade line, Major Alexander Yates, 36th Mississippi, killed; in Cockrell's Brigade, killed 28, wounded 95, total 123, nearly all in this position; in 3d Missouri, of that brigade, killed 12, wounded 52, total 64.

The stockade and the north face of the redan were held, after May 25, by the 27th Louisiana. The east face of the redan was held after June 2, by the left regiment of Green's Brigade. Two countermines against the Union approach, from the ditch of the redan, were fired the night of June 26; another was prepared, but not fired.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

This redan and the line immediately to its right were held, the afternoon of May 19, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 7th Mississippi Infantry Battalion. Its casualties cannot be accurately stated.

The position was held, May 22, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 7th Mississippi Infantry Battalion, the 5th Missouri Infantry, and one company of the 1st and 4th Missouri Infantry (consolidated). The casualties cannot be accurately stated.

This redan, after June 2, was held by the 20th Arkansas of Green's Brigade. Gen. Green was killed in it the morning of June 27. Two countermines against the Union approach were prepared, but not fired.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Right of Green's Brigade, After June 2.

The line from the right of the 7th Mississippi Infantry Battalion to near Glass' Bayou was held, May 19 and May 22, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 37th and 38th Mississippi. The casualties in the two regiments, on those days, cannot be accurately stated. Hebert's Brigade shortened its line, June 2, by closing to the right, and Green's Brigade took position in the line of defense, resting its right at this point.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Ewing's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

* Blair's Division was massed for the assault, the morning of May 22, on the left of the Graveyard road and about 900 yards from the Confederate Stockade Redan. A volunteer storming party of 150 men from the regiments of the division, under command of Capt. John H. Groce, 30th Ohio, with Gen. Ewing's headquarters flag carried by private Howell G. Trogden, 8th Missouri, at the head of the column, advanced at 10.00 a.m., by the flank, on the Graveyard road, followed by Ewing's Brigade—the 30th Ohio leading. The headquarters flag was placed on the parapet of the Confederate Redan, and the storming party took position in the ditch and on the north face of the parapet. The 30th Ohio advanced close to the angle of the redan but was compelled to seek shelter from the Confederate fire, and the brigade was reformed behind the crest of the ridge, at the left of the road, and about 140 yards from the Confederate line. This position was held continuously, and, that night, the dead, the wounded and the colors were brought back to it, and intrenchments were begun. This tablet marks the point on the parapet of the Confederate Redan where Gen. Ewing's headquarters flag was placed. Casualties: 30th Ohio, killed 6, wounded 43, missing 2, total 51, Capt. Thomas Hayes killed, Lieut. Hiram J. Davis mortally wounded; 37th Ohio, killed 10, wounded 31, total 41; 47th Ohio, killed 6, wounded 26, missing 1, total 33; 4th West Virginia, killed 3, wounded 16, total 19; aggregate, killed 25, wounded 116, missing 3, total 144.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Mower's Brigade; Assault, Afternoon of May 22, 1863.

Mower's and Matthies' Brigades of Tuttle's Division were massed for the assault, the morning of May 22, on the left of the Graveyard road and in rear of Blair's Division. The two brigades remained in this position until about 3.00 p.m., when Mower's Brigade—the 11th Missouri leading, followed by the 47th Illinois, advanced to the assault, by the flank, on the Graveyard road, followed by Matthies' Brigade—the 12th Iowa leading. The flag of the 11th Missouri was placed on the parapet of the Confederate Stockade Redan, close to Gen. Ewing's headquarters flag; Col. Weber and a few officers and men of that regiment took position in the ditch and on the outside slope of the parapet, but the brigade was compelled to seek shelter from the Confederate fire and was ordered into a ravine, from which it was withdrawn after dark. This tablet marks the point on the parapet of the Stockade Redan where the flag of the 11th Missouri was placed. Casualties: 47th Illinois, killed 5, wounded 33, total 38; 5th Minnesota, killed 2, wounded 1, missing 7, total 10; 11th Missouri, killed 7, wounded 85, total 92, Lieut. Charles H. Brookings mortally wounded; 8th Wisconsin, killed 3, wounded 17, missing 22, total 42, Lieut. Willard D. Chapman killed, Capt. Stephen Estee mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 17, wounded 136, missing 29, total 182.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Giles A. Smith's Brigade; Assault, Afternoon of May 22, 1863.

Blair's Division was massed for the assault, the morning of May 22, on the left of the Graveyard road and about 900 yards from the Confederate Stockade Redan. At 10.00 o'clock a.m., this brigade followed Ewing's by the flank, on the Graveyard road. When the assault on that road failed, this brigade filed to the left, followed a ravine, running south, for some distance, formed line in the following order from right to left: 6th Missouri, 113th Illinois (detachment), 116th Illinois, 8th Missouri, 55th Illinois, of T. K. Smith's Brigade; advanced and took position about 100 yards from the Confederate line. In the afternoon, in connection with Ransom's Brigade of the 17th Corps, it advanced to the assault, but was not able to reach the Confederate line. The ground gained was held, and intrenchments begun on it. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the 8th Missouri, in the afternoon assault. Casualties: 113th Illinois (detachment), killed 7, wounded 20, total 27; 116th Illinois, killed 1, wounded 8, total 9, Lieut. Nathan W. Wheeler killed, Lieut. Gusten F. Hardy mortally wounded; 6th Missouri, killed 2, wounded 13, total 15; 8th Missouri, killed 10, wounded 40, missing 1, total 51; aggregate, killed 20, wounded 81, missing 1, total 102; 55th Illinois of T. K. Smith's Brigade, killed 5, wounded 13, total 18.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Ransom's Brigade; Assault, Afternoon of May 22, 1863.

This brigade was formed for the assault, in columns of regiments by divisions closed in mass, in the following order from right to left: 72d Illinois, 14th Wisconsin, 95th Illinois, 11th Illinois in front and the 17th Wisconsin in support. The formation was in a ravine about 100 yards in front of the Confederate line and was completed about 11.00 a.m. At 2.15 p.m., the brigade advanced to the assault and placed the colors of the first-named four regiments close to the Confederate line. The 14th Wisconsin approached closest and placed the first flag in front of that line. The position gained was held for a short time, when, by order of General Ransom, the brigade under cover of the fire of the 17th Wisconsin, retired to the ravine in which it was formed, except that six companies of the 14th Wisconsin, directly under the Confederate works, could not be withdrawn until after dark. This tablet marks the farthest advance of that regiment. Casualties: 11th Illinois, killed 3, wounded 30, missing 9, total 42, Lieut. Col. Garrett Nevius killed; 72d Illinois, killed 20, wounded 71, missing 5, total 96, Lieuts. Henry C. Mowry and James A. Bingham killed, Lieut. Col. Joseph C. Wright mortally wounded; 95th Illinois, killed 18, wounded 83, missing 8, total 109, Capt. Jason B. Manzer and Gabriel E. Cornwell killed, Capt. Edward J. Cook and Lieut. James E. Sponable mortally wounded; 14th Wisconsin, killed 14, wounded 79, missing 4, total 97, Lieut. Colin Miller killed; 17th Wisconsin, killed 2, wounded 12, missing 6, total 20; aggregate, killed 57, wounded 275, missing 32, total 364.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

John E. Smith's Brigade; Assault May 22, 1863.

This brigade was ordered to assault the Confederate Third Louisiana Redan on north side of Jackson road. The 31st and 124th Illinois regiments were deployed as sharpshooters. About 10.00 a.m. the 23d Indiana advanced by the flank, in quick time with fixed bayonets, followed by the 20th Illinois. The leading regiment advanced to within about 100 yards of the redan, filed right and marched in the new direction until its left cleared the road. It found, in its front, a deep ravine covered with a heavy abatis, and was ordered to retire by companies. The 20th Illinois advanced on the road close to the salient angle of the redan, turned obliquely to the left and found shelter on the slope of the ridge in front of the Confederate intrenchment. At 2.00 p.m. the 45th Illinois, under command of Maj. Luther H. Cowen, advanced on the road, by the flank with fixed bayonets, supported by the 20th Ohio of the Second Brigade. The leading regiment advanced close to the salient angle of the redan, filed obliquely to the left and found shelter on the slope of the ridge, immediately in rear of the 20th Illinois. Both regiments remained in the positions gained until the evening of the 23d, when they retired, under orders. The 20th Ohio was not ordered forward. This tablet marks the place where Major Cowen was killed at the head of his regiment. Casualties: 20th Illinois, wounded 23; 31st Illinois, killed 3, wounded 21, total 24, Capt. Horace L. Bowyer mortally wounded; 45th Illinois, killed 1, wounded 19, missing 2, total 22, Major Luther H. Cowen killed; 124th Illinois, wounded 2; 23d Indiana, killed 3, wounded 7, total 10, Lieut. Christian G. Zulauf killed; aggregate, killed 7, wounded 72, missing 2, total 81.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Affair of the Crater; June 25-26, 1863.

A mine, at the head of Logan's approach to the Third Louisiana Redan, was begun on June 23, finished the forenoon of June 25, and charged with 2,200 pounds of powder. Leggett's (1st) Brigade of Logan's (3d) Division, 17th Corps, occupied the trenches, under orders to assault. The mine was fired about 3.30 p.m., and, before the smoke had cleared away, the 45th Illinois, at the head of the column, occupied the crater made by the explosion and opened fire on the Confederates behind the parapet across the gorge of the redan. The 20th Illinois relieved the 45th and was relieved by the 31st Illinois, the 56th Illinois relieved the 31st and was relieved by the 23d Indiana, the 17th Iowa relieved the 23d Indiana and was relieved by the 31st Illinois at 2.00 a.m. of the 26th, the 45th Illinois relieved the 31st at daylight, and was relieved by the 124th Illinois at 10.00 a.m.; that regiment held the position until 5.00 p.m., when fighting ceased in the crater. Hand grenades were freely used on both sides. Shells with lighted fuses, used as grenades by the Confederates, were, in some instances, thrown back before they exploded. This tablet marks the part of the crater nearest the Confederate parapet across the gorge of the redan. Casualties: 20th Illinois, killed 2, wounded 7, total 9; 31st Illinois, killed 7, wounded 27, total 34, Lieut. Col. John D. Rees and Capt. Levi B. Casey, mortally wounded; 45th Illinois, killed 8, wounded 62, total 70, Capt. Leander B. Fisk, acting Major, killed, Lieut. Col. Melancthon Smith mortally wounded; 124th Illinois, killed 6, wounded 49, total 55, Lieut. Julius A. Pratt killed; 23d Indiana, killed 8, wounded 31, total 39, Capt. William M. Darrough mortally wounded; aggregate in first brigade, third division, from May 23 to July 4, inclusive, killed 31, wounded 176, total 207, largely in crater, all officers named (except Capt. Darrough, wounded July 1), killed or mortally wounded in that affair; 56th Illinois, killed 4, wounded 13, total 17, Lieut. Andrew E. Walbright killed; 17th Iowa, killed 3, wounded 34, total 37; aggregate in second brigade, seventh division, killed 7, wounded 47, total 54, all in crater.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Third Louisiana Redan, on left of Jackson Road.

This redan was held, May 22, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 3d Louisiana, with the 43d Mississippi on its left. The casualties cannot be accurately stated.

A Union mine was fired under the redan the afternoon of June 25, almost destroying its front parapet, making a crater in its terreplein, but not injuring a parapet across its gorge. It was then held by the 3d Louisiana, supported by the 6th Missouri, with the 38th Mississippi on the right and the 43d Mississippi on the left. The Union force assaulted immediately after the mine was fired, occupied the crater and attempted to carry the parapet across the gorge of the redan, but was repulsed. Col. Erwin, 6th Missouri, at the head of some of his men, attempted a countercharge and was killed on top of the parapet. The Union force in the crater was successively relieved by fresh troops, the fighting continued all night and most of the next day, and the position was firmly held. Hand grenades and shells with lighted fuses in place of grenades, were freely used on both sides. After dark of the 25th, the 5th Missouri reinforced this position. Casualties: 3d Louisiana, killed 6, wounded 21, total 27; 38th Mississippi, killed 1, wounded 3, total 4; 43d Mississippi, killed 6 (buried by firing of mine), wounded 5, total 11; 5th Missouri, killed 1, wounded 7, total 8; 6th Missouri, killed 3, wounded 22, total 25, Col. Eugene Erwin and Lieut. W. S. Lipscomb killed; aggregate, killed 17, wounded 58, total 75. The 2d Missouri was moved to this position the night of June 26, and the 1st and 4th Missouri (consolidated) the evening of July 1. In the afternoon of that day a second mine was fired under the redan, almost completely destroying both its faces and materially damaging the parapet across its gorge, but no assault was made by the Union force. Lieut. Col. Pembroke S. Senteny, 2d Missouri, and Lieuts. John T. Crenshaw and John Roseberry, 6th Missouri, were killed—Lieut. Crenshaw being buried by the firing of the mine.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Stevenson's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This brigade, with fixed bayonets, was formed in two columns of regiments by divisions—the 7th Missouri and 81st Illinois on the right, the 8th Illinois and 32d Ohio on the left; the 17th Illinois deployed in front as skirmishers. The formation was in a ravine in front of the Confederate line. The columns moved to the assault about 10.00 a.m., the right led by Capt. Buchanan, the left led by Col. Sturges, and both advanced near to the Confederate intrenchment; the left column was halted and ordered to form a reserve to the right, which was ordered to form line, the 81st Illinois on the left of the 7th Missouri. This movement was made under a heavy fire and the men were then ordered to lie down. After a time the fire slackened and the command was ordered forward. The 7th Missouri and the 81st Illinois advanced close to the ditch of the redoubt, some men of the 7th, carrying scaling ladders, getting into the ditch; the Confederate fire was again very severe and both were ordered to retire and re-form. The other regiments held their positions until ordered to camp at nightfall. This tablet marks the farthest advance of the right of the line of the 7th Missouri. Casualties: 8th Illinois, killed 4, wounded 19, total 23; 17th Illinois, killed 3, wounded 23, total 26; 81st Illinois, killed 18, wounded 80, total 98, Col. James J. Dollins, Lieut. Zebedee Hammack, Lieut. William L. Farmer and Lieut. Hugh Warnock killed, Capt. Cornelius S. Ward and Lieut. Abraham L. Lippincott mortally wounded; 7th Missouri, killed 9, wounded 93, total 102, Lieut. Charles H. Brookings mortally wounded; 32d Ohio, wounded 23; aggregate, killed 34, wounded 238, total 272.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Great Redoubt on right of Jackson Road.

This redoubt was held, May 22, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 21st Louisiana and Companies C and D, 22d Louisiana. Casualties: Capt. J. Ryan, 21st Louisiana and Lieut. R. E. Lehman, 22d Louisiana, killed; the other casualties cannot be accurately stated.

The same commands held the redoubt during the defense. Their casualties were: 21st Louisiana, killed 16, wounded 50, missing 1, total 67, Capt. J. Ryan and Lieut. G. H. Mann killed; 22d Louisiana (detachment), killed 13, wounded 23, missing 1, total 37, Capt. F. Gomez and Lieut. R. E. Lehman killed.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Boomer's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

First Position.

This brigade was formed, about 8.00 a.m., on the right of Quinby's Division in columns of regiments by closed divisions. At 10.00 a.m. the columns advanced to the crest of the ridge in front and were halted. The brigade remained in this position, on the left of Stevenson's Brigade of Logan's Division, until about 3.00 p.m., and was then ordered to the support of the 13th Corps, on the left, where it was engaged in the afternoon. This tablet marks the head of the left column in the first position. Casualties in this position: 5th Iowa, killed 1, wounded 2, total 3; 10th Iowa, killed 2, wounded 14, total 16; aggregate, killed 3, wounded 16, total 19.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Benton's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This brigade advanced by the right flank at 10.00 a.m., to assault the Confederate Lunette on the Baldwin's Ferry road, through the ravine that debouches on that road immediately in front of the left face of that lunette, in order from right to left as follows: 99th Illinois, 33d Illinois, 8th Indiana, 18th Indiana. The regiments encountered a very severe fire as they successively approached the head of the ravine and the brigade took position in front of both faces of the Confederate Lunette and the curtain south of it—the 99th Illinois around the salient angle of the lunette, the 18th Indiana on its right, the 33d Illinois on the left of the 99th Illinois, and the 8th Indiana still farther to the left. Detachments of the two last-named regiments crossed the railroad and took position in front of the Confederate railroad redoubt. The positions gained were held either until detachments of the brigade were relieved by Sanborn's Brigade or until after dark, when all the detachments not previously relieved, retired. This tablet marks the right of the 99th Illinois as that regiment first formed, under fire, around the Confederate Lunette, and the point where its right substantially remained until the brigade was relieved. Casualties: 33d Illinois, killed 13, wounded 59, total 72; 99th Illinois, killed 19, wounded 77, missing 6, total 102, Lieut. Thomas J. Kinman killed, Capt. Eli R. Smith and Lieut. William Gray mortally wounded; 8th Indiana, killed 22, wounded 95, total 117, Capts. Andrew O'Daniel, Frederick S. Wysong and Hiram Y. Vandevender killed; 18th Indiana, killed 7, wounded 39, missing 1, total 47, Major John C. Jenks and Lieut. John L. Lowes mortally wounded; 1st United States (serving siege guns), wounded 3; aggregate, killed 61, wounded 273, missing 7, total 341.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Burbridge's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This brigade was formed for the assault in support of Benton's, advanced when that brigade became engaged, and took position on its right—the 16th Indiana on the left, the 83d Ohio in the center, the 67th Indiana on the right, and the 23d Wisconsin at first in reserve but soon ordered to support the right of the brigade with four companies and the left with six. Gen. Burbridge, commanding brigade, was ordered by Gen. Carr to send two regiments of his command to reinforce Gen. Benton's left; in obedience to that order, the 67th Indiana and 23d Wisconsin were withdrawn from the line; the order, however, was soon countermanded and the two regiments were returned to the brigade line. A 6-pounder gun of the Chicago Mercantile Battery was ordered to the front and drawn by hand, with the assistance of enlisted men of this brigade and of Benton's Brigade, to a position about thirty feet from the Confederate Lunette, against which it was vigorously served. The brigade maintained its position until near sunset, when it was relieved by Sanborn's Brigade and retired. This tablet marks the right of the 16th Indiana and the left of the 83d Ohio, as the brigade line was formed at the time of its closest approach to the Confederate intrenchment. Casualties: 16th Indiana, killed 2, wounded 12, total 14; 67th Indiana, killed 6, wounded 23, total 29; 83d Ohio, killed 4, wounded 19, total 23; 23d Wisconsin, killed 2, wounded 28, missing 2, total 32; aggregate, killed 14, wounded 82, missing 2, total 98.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Sanborn's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

The 4th Minnesota, with the 48th Indiana in support, was formed, for the assault at 10.00 a.m., in line of battle on the left of Boomer's Brigade, about eighty yards in front of the Confederate intrenchment and on the slope of a ridge affording some protection. The 59th Indiana was temporarily transferred to Boomer's Brigade and formed with it; the 18th Wisconsin was deployed as skirmishers in front of that brigade and the 4th Minnesota. No assault was made from that position, and, about 3 p.m., this brigade was ordered to reinforce Gen. McClernand's right; the 59th Indiana was returned to its command and the 18th Wisconsin ordered to remain on the skirmish line. The three regiments moved to the left, were directed to support Burbridge's Brigade in the assault on the Confederate Lunette on the Baldwin's Ferry road, marched by the flank through the ravine that debouches on that road at the lunette, formed line of battle, relieving Burbridge's Brigade, in front and to the right of the north face of that work—59th Indiana on the right, 48th Indiana in the center, 4th Minnesota on the left; repulsed an attack on the right, held the position until after dark, retired under orders, Company C, 4th Minnesota, assisting in the removal of the gun of the Chicago Mercantile Battery, and returned, next day, to the brigade position on the investment line. This tablet marks the right of the 4th Minnesota and the left of the 48th Indiana, as the three regiments of this brigade were formed in position at the Baldwin's Ferry road. Casualties: 48th Indiana, killed 8, wounded 24, missing 1, total 33; 59th Indiana, killed 11, wounded 99, missing 1, total 111, Lieut. Marcus B. C. Tripp killed; 4th Minnesota, killed 12, wounded 42, total 54, Lieut. George G. Sherbrooke killed, Lieut. Clark Turner mortally wounded; 18th Wisconsin (on skirmish line) killed 5, wounded 11, total 16, Lieut. William H. Alban mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 36, wounded 176, missing 2, total 214.

Boomer's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

Second Position.

This brigade moved from its first position, on the left of Stevenson's Brigade of Logan's Division, about 3.00 p.m., reported to Gen. Carr about 4.00 p.m., and was ordered to assault the Confederate curtain between the lunette on the Baldwin's Ferry road and the railroad redoubt. The brigade was formed, in two lines with intervals of about 50 yards, behind the crest of the ridge about 400 yards in front of the Confederate curtain, in the following order: the 5th Iowa on the right, in front, with the 26th Missouri in its rear; the 93d Illinois on the left, in front, with the 10th Iowa in its rear. When the formation was completed, the brigade advanced, at common time, passed the first ridge and halted, near the crest of the second, to correct its alignment for the final assault on the Confederate curtain—the 5th Iowa being moved by the left flank to the rear and partly to the left of the 93d Illinois and 10th Iowa. Immediately thereafter the brigade commander, Col. George B. Boomer, 26th Missouri, was instantly killed by a musket ball and the final assault was not made. Col. Holden Putnam, 93d Illinois, assumed command, and, under orders from Gen. Carr, the brigade remained in position until after dark and then retired to the position where it was first formed for the afternoon assault—returning, next day, to its position on the investment line of the 17th Corps. This tablet marks the place where Col. Boomer was killed. Casualties in second position: 93d Illinois, killed 4, wounded 51, total 55; 5th Iowa, killed 2, wounded 16, total 18; 10th Iowa, wounded 12; 26th Missouri, killed 5, wounded 5, total 10, Col. George B. Boomer killed; aggregate, killed 11, wounded 84, total 95.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Lunette on Right of Baldwin's Ferry Road.

This salient lunette and the lines immediately on its right and left were held, May 22, 1863, and the assaults of the Union force repulsed, by the 2d Texas Infantry—the right two companies occupying the curtain to the right; the left four companies, the curtain immediately north of the Baldwin's Ferry road; and four companies in the lunette. The 42d Alabama held the curtain between the right of the 2d Texas and the railroad. Green's Brigade, about 1.00 p.m., reinforced this position; and, about 5.00 p.m., detachments of the 1st and 3d Missouri Cavalry and of the 1st Arkansas Cavalry, dismounted, made a sally from the lunette and materially assisted in repulsing the Union assault on its left flank. Before the end of May the left four companies of the 2d Texas were moved into the lunette. A countermine against the Union approach was fired, June 28; two others were prepared, but not fired. Both the sap rollers in front of the two Union approaches to this work were burned on July 1. This tablet marks the salient angle of this lunette. Casualties: in 2d Texas during the defense: killed 38, wounded 73, missing 15, total 126, Capt. A. F. Gammell and Lieut. Robert S. Henry killed, Lieut. William F. Kirk mortally wounded.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Lawler's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This brigade was formed for the assault of the Confederate Railroad Redoubt, in the ravine immediately in front of that redoubt, in two lines—the 22d Iowa on the right supported by the 21st Iowa and the 11th Wisconsin on the left supported by the 97th Illinois of Landram's Brigade, temporarily attached. The brigade advanced to the assault about 10.00 a.m.; detachments of the 21st and 22d Iowa reached the ditch of the redoubt and the flag of the 22d was placed on its parapet; Sergts. Joseph E. Griffith and N. C. Messenger and about 12 other enlisted men of that regiment mounted the parapet at the salient angle, entered the redoubt, captured a lieutenant and about 12 enlisted men, remained a short time in the work and then retired to its ditch and the outside slope of the parapet, after sustaining severe loss. The 11th Wisconsin passed beyond the redoubt, on its left, took position in the ravine in front of the line of the Confederate intrenchment and held the position until after dark. About 5.30 p.m. the Confederates made a sortie from the intrenchment in rear of the redoubt and re-occupied it; later in the evening, Lieut. Col. Harvey Graham, 22d Iowa, and about 28 enlisted men of the brigade were captured in the ditch of the redoubt. Detachments of the 21st and 22d Iowa remained in position on the slope in front of the redoubt until after dark, when the brigade retired, under orders. This tablet marks the place on the parapet of the redoubt where the flag of the 22d Iowa was placed. Casualties: 21st Iowa, killed 16, wounded 87, missing 10, total 113, Lieut. Col. Cornelius W. Dunlap killed, Lieuts. Samuel Bates and William A. Roberts mortally wounded; 22d Iowa, killed 27, wounded 118, missing 19, total 164, Capt. James Robertson and Lieut. Matthew A. Robb killed; 11th Wisconsin, killed 11, wounded 80, total 91, Lieut. Hiram E. Smith killed, Capt. Alfred J. Peaslee and Lieut. James Law mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 54, wounded 285, missing 29, total 368.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Landram's Brigade; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This brigade was formed, in support of Lawler's, for the assault on the Confederate Railroad Redoubt, behind the crest of the ridge about 380 yards in front of that redoubt, in lines of battle—the 77th Illinois on the right supported by the 48th Ohio, the 19th Kentucky on the left, the 130th Illinois in support of both right and left. The 97th Illinois was temporarily attached to Lawler's Brigade and formed with it, in support of the 11th Wisconsin, on the left of that brigade. This brigade advanced about 10.00 a.m., some men of the 77th Illinois reached the ditch of the redoubt and the flag of that regiment was placed on its parapet; the brigade took position on the slope in front of the redoubt, and the flag of the 130th Illinois was placed close to that work. About 5.30 p.m., the Confederates made a sortie from the intrenchment in rear of the redoubt and re-occupied it; later in the evening, about 30 men of the brigade were captured in the ditch of the redoubt. Col. Sullivan, in his report, states that the flag of the 48th Ohio was also placed on the parapet and was brought off just before the sortie was made. This brigade held its position on the slope in front of the redoubt until after dark and then retired, under orders. This tablet marks the place on the parapet of the redoubt where the flag of the 77th Illinois was placed. Casualties: 77th Illinois, killed 19, wounded 85, missing 26, total 130; 97th Illinois, wounded 12, missing 2, total 14; 130th Illinois, killed 10, wounded 31, total 41, Capt. William M. Colby killed; 19th Kentucky, killed 5, wounded 57, missing 2, total 64, Maj. Morgan V. Evans killed; 48th Ohio, killed 10, wounded 25, total 35, Major Virgil H. Moats mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 44, wounded 210, missing 30, total 284.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

The Railroad Redoubt.

This salient redoubt was occupied May 22, 1863, by a detachment of the 30th Alabama, supported by two companies under Maj. O. Steele, of Waul's Texas Legion. The intrenchment in rear was held by the 30th Alabama, reinforced during the day, by the 46th Alabama under command of Lieut. Col. E. W. Pettus, 20th Alabama—a large part of the 46th, including all its field officers, having been captured, May 16, in the battle of Champion's Hill. About 11.00 a.m. a detachment of the Union assaulting force reached the ditch of the redoubt and placed flags on its parapet, a small party entered this work at its salient angle, where a breach had been made by the Union artillery, captured a lieutenant and a few enlisted men, held the redoubt a short time and then retired to its ditch, after sustaining severe loss. This work was retaken, about 5.30 p.m., by detachments of Capt. Bradley's and Lieut. Hogue's Companies of Waul's Texas Legion, led by Lieut. Col. E. W. Pettus, 20th Alabama; later in the evening, a Lieut. Col. and about 58 men were captured in the ditch. The casualties in the commands defending and recapturing the redoubt on that day cannot be accurately stated. After May 22, during the defense, this work was held by companies of the 46th Alabama. Countermine against the Union approach were prepared and one was fired the night of July 2. This tablet marks the salient angle at which the assaulting party entered this redoubt on May 22. Casualties in 46th Alabama during the defense: killed 15, wounded 45, total 60.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Small Work on Line of Lee's Brigade.

This work was held by the right of the 30th Alabama, under command of Col. Charles M. Shelley, with the 31st Alabama on its right. No direct assault was made on it, but the fire from this work materially assisted in repulsing the assaults, May 22, 1863, on the lines to its right and left. During the defense, Brig. Gen. S. D. Lee, commanding brigade, made his headquarters, in the daytime, at this work. The casualties in the 30th Alabama during the defense cannot be accurately stated.

UNION POSITION TABLET.

Osterhaus' Division; Assault, May 22, 1863.

This division was formed for the assault in three columns by divisions at half distance, as follows: right column, 22d Kentucky, 42d Ohio; center column, 114th Ohio, 49th Indiana, 69th Indiana; left column, 7th Kentucky, 118th Illinois, 120th Ohio. The 16th Ohio was deployed in front as skirmishers. The division advanced about 10.00 a.m.; the heads of columns approach close to the Confederate intrenchment; the 7th Kentucky leading the left column, encountered the severest fire and suffered the greatest loss. This tablet marks the farthest advance of that regiment. The positions gained were held until after dark when the division retired, under orders, leaving strong pickets and a line of sharpshooters on the most advanced points. Casualties: 118th Illinois, killed 2, wounded 3, total 5; 49th Indiana, killed 2, wounded 13, total 15; 69th Indiana, killed 2, wounded 10, total 12, Major John H. Finley and Lieut. Henry Stratton mortally wounded; 7th Kentucky, killed 9, wounded 60, total 69, Lieut. Thomas Buchanan mortally wounded; 120th Ohio, wounded 1; 22d Kentucky, killed 3, wounded 14, total 17; 16th Ohio, killed 4, wounded 5, total 9; 42d Ohio, killed 1, wounded 21, missing 1, total 23; 114th Ohio, killed 6, wounded 23, total 29, Lieut. Willis C. Ferguson mortally wounded; aggregate, killed 29, wounded 150, missing 1, total 180.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Small Work on Line of Lee's Brigade.

This work was held, May 22, 1863, and the assault of the Union force repulsed, by the 31st Alabama under command of Lieut. Col. T. M. Arrington, and Maj. G. W. Mathieson, with the 23d Alabama on its right and the 30th Alabama on its left. The casualties in the regiment on that day cannot be accurately stated. The regiment held the same position until the end of the defense. Casualties during the defense: in 31st Alabama, killed 21, wounded 37, total 58; in 23d Alabama, killed 17, wounded 15, total 32.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

Fort Garrott on Right of Lee's Brigade.

This work and the line immediately on its left were held by the 20th Alabama. No direct assault was made on it, May 22, 1863, by the Union force, but the fire from this work materially aided in repulsing the assault of Osterhaus' Division on the line to its left. Col. Isham W. Garrott was killed June 17, on duty in this fort, and Lieut. Col. E. W. Pettus commanded the regiment from that time until the end of the defense. Two countermine against the Union approach were prepared, but not fired. The casualties in the 20th Alabama during the defense cannot be accurately stated.

CONFEDERATE POSITION TABLET.

This work was held by the right companies of the 57th Georgia under command of Lieut. Col. C. S. Guyton. No assault was made on it by the Union force. Two sorties were made from this work by its garrison, reinforced by the left companies of the 43d Tennessee of Reynolds' Brigade. In the last one, the night of June 22, 1863, a lieutenant-colonel and five men were captured, part of the Union trench was filled, and, the next night, a countertrench from this work was begun. The ground gained was held until the night of June 24, when it was retaken by the Union force. A countermine against the Union approach was prepared, but not fired. The casualties in the 57th Georgia during the defense cannot be accurately stated.

The 13th, 15th and 17th Corps were engaged in the battles and movements of the Vicksburg campaign beginning March 29, 1863; took position on the investment line May 19—the 15th on the right, the 17th in the center, the 13th on the left; and made unsuccessful assaults on the Confederate line of defense the afternoon of May 19 and on May 22. One division of the 16th Corps took position on the left of the 13th, May 25, and Herron's Division on the extreme left, June 15. The 9th Corps, two divisions of the 16th, and seven brigades from the other corps were deployed on an exterior line, from Haynes' Bluff on the left to Big Black River Bridge on the right, to guard against attack by Johnston's army, and were under command of Gen. Sherman after June 22. Siege operations were carried on from May 23 to July 3, when a proposal for capitulation came to Gen. Grant from Gen. Pemberton. They met for conference that afternoon between the lines and near the Jackson road. The terms of capitulation were agreed upon by correspondence after the meeting and, July 4, the Confederate army of Vicksburg was surrendered to Gen. Grant, and a detachment of his army occupied the city. The aggregate reported casualties in the army during the campaign and siege were, killed 1,581, wounded 7,554, missing 1,007, total 10,142.

The Legion was at Fort Pemberton, Mississippi, during March and April, 1863. By order of Gen. Pemberton, dated May 4, Col. Waul moved on transports to Snyder's Bluff, leaving 300 of his troops at Fort Pemberton. He reported that the part of the Legion that entered Vicksburg, May 17, and served in the defense, consisted of eleven infantry companies, one artillery company, a detachment of mounted scouts, and a battalion of attached Zouaves. The afternoon of May 19, the command reported to Gen. Stevenson and was assigned a position in rear of the left of Lee's Brigade, that being the most assailable and threatened point on the line of Stevenson's Division. It assisted in repulsing the assaults on Gen. Lee's line, May 22, and with a detachment from two of its companies—about 35 men led by Col. Edmund W. Pettus, 20th Alabama, reoccupied the railroad redoubt. Casualties: in the defense, killed 47, wounded 190, missing 8, total 245, ten officers reported killed.

The army was assembled after the engagement at Jackson, Mississippi, May 14, 1863, in the hope that it would be able to raise the siege of Vicksburg, either by defeating the army of the Tennessee, or by assisting the Confederate Army of Vicksburg to break through the investment line. Loring's Division, and Gregg's, Gist's and Wilson's Brigades of Walker's Division were engaged in some of the battles of the campaign. The army was on the march towards Vicksburg, July 4, and its leading divisions were close to and on the east side of Big Black River. It fell back to Jackson when the Army of Vicksburg surrendered. The aggregate reported casualties in the army during the campaign were, killed 111, wounded 392, missing 352, total 855.
